Strode, was face, black hair, just becoming tinged with eleceted by five thousand majority. During all three of the campaigns as challenged the opposing candidates to a debate and several discussions were held.

After his retirement from Congress Mr. Bryan took up the practice of law in Lincoln again, but the silver campaign opening, he found that the calls upon him for speeches and campaign work were so frequent that he was forced to give up his law practice. In September, 1894, he became the editor-in-chief of the Omaha World-Herald and had control of its editorial policy on State and national ques-

Mr. Bryan is a man of small means. He was married Oct. 1, 1884, to Mary Baird of Perry, Ill., who attended the female Academy, in Jacksonville, when he was in the other school at the same place and who graduated the same week that he did and was also the valedictorian of her class. She studied law and was admitted to the bar without any idea of practicing, but simply to be more thoroughly companionable to him. She is a year or two younger than he. Three children have been born to them, Ruth, ten years old; William J., jr., about seven, and Grace, five years old. Mr. Bryan is a Presbyterian, having joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church at the age of fourteen. He is now a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Lincoln. His father was Silas L. Bryan, who was a circuit judge at the time of his son's birth and served in that capacity from 1860 to 1872 on the bench of Illinois, Judge Bryan moved on a farm a short distance from Salem, when his son was six years old, and from that time until he was twenty-three years old. Bryan spent his sumon the farm. In 1872 his ran for Congress on Greelev ticket and was defeated by 240 votes. Mr. Bryan's family comes from Virginia. His father was born in Culpepper county, in that State, and died in Salem, Ill., in 1880. His mother, whose name was Marie Elizabeth Jennings, was born in Marion county, Illinois, and died in Salem, a week ago last Saturday after a protracted illness. In appearance Mr. Bryan is impressive, his face indicating intellectuality and power as well as good nature. There is a notable absence of the boyish look seen in the pictures and lithographs of him which have been circulated. He is affable and kindly in manner, easily approached and does not lack dignity. In appearance he is an illustration of the fact that some men are never accorded justice by a picture, which, in his case, does not prepare one for the expression of keenness shown in his face. NOT LONG IN NEBRASKA.

Hon. W. J. Bryan has not long been a political figure in Nebraska, in fact, he is a comparatively new man in the political arena of his State. Through his debates on finance with Senator John M. Thurston Bryan became much better known as the champion of silver. Bryan supported J. Sterling Morton for Congress in 1888. The a series of joint debates and made so brilliant a showing that he carried the district by a tremendous majority. It is said the fame he gained in these joint debates, of which the tariff was the theme, induced Speaker Crisp to appoint Bryan on the ways and means committee. On March 1, success in a speech on free wool.

Before the election of 1894 Mr. Bryan refused a nomination as Congressman and campaigned for election to the United States Senate. His platform for the 16-to-1 free coinage of silver caused Morton and other administration Democrats to fight aim bitterly. He was, however, nominated by the State Democratic convention. Two joint debates at Lincoln and at Omaha, respectively, with John M. Thurston, the Republican candidate for the Senatorship. attracted much attention. The Legislature was, however, Republican and Mr. Thurston was elected.

Mr. Bryan lives well in a commodious dwelling in the fashionable part of Lincoln, The study in which both Mr. and Mrs. Bryan have desks is a very attractive room. It is filled with books, statuary and mementoes of campaigns. There are busts or portraits of noted men, and there are two butcher knives which Mr. Bryan used in the campaign with Judge Field, to efute the latter's boasts of the effects of any aspirations looking to the White House and he said: "No. I have no wish to be a presidential candidate, neither now nor for tered on my family and my profession, so far as my own personal desires go. I was brought up in the country and I wish my children to have some of the same rearing. They are now at the age when they need a father's care, and I wish to get into practice again, for I very much enjoy the law. which has been necessarily abandoned during my four years in Washington." Mrs. Bryan has a great liking for politics and accompanies her husband on many of entially literary and she has written much for various causes. She is a charming woman and is as great a favorite in Lincoln as her husband. She was one of the organizers of Sorosts, the leading woman's club of Lincoln, and is also a member of the W. C. A. and other societies. Mr. Bryan says she is invaluable to him in suggestions and the preparation of material, and in advice as to points and methods. The children are very bright and are pretty and well-bred.

It is not only for Mr. Bryan's great gifts as a speaker that he is esteemed so highly by the people of his home State. No taint has ever attached to his public or private Bryan neglects none of the accessories of oratory. Nature richly endowed him with rare grace. He is happy in attitude. and pose. Mellifluous is the one word that enough to be heard by thousands. It is so modulated as not to vex the ear with monotony, and can be stern and pathetic. flerce or gentle, serious or humorous, with the varying emotions of its master. J. Pryan is a collegiate scholar, and has stowed away in his capacious cranium much of the golden grain of wisdom and little of the husks, and it is all there for it is positive advantage to them as public speakers. Some are so handsome and graceful that they are on good terms with the audience before they open their lips. Of the latter class Bryan is a shining example. His appearance is a passport to the affections of his fellow-men.

Our friends had worked very hard all morning, and Mr. Bryan was given many pledges last night from States that had other candidates. I am very proud of my husband's success, but I think he has earned it I don't want to talk for publication, because I have reatly nothing to say, except to thank the delegates for their

Mrs. Bryan, who has become suddenly interesting to everybody, bears her honors modestly, but with much dignity, Mrs. Bryan came here with her husband and has been in close touch with the changing situation during the last few days, which finally resulted in the selection of her husband as the Democratic standard bearer. Vigorous in Their Denunciation the "Crazy" Work of the Chicago Convention.

Comments from the leading Democratic, German and independent newspapers on the work of the Chicago convention are given below. The extracts are taken from this morning's issues:

The Democratic convention has adjourned and it has done what we, and with us milions, have feared-it has hitched the Democracy to the free-silver wagon-pulled by the Populists, and has placed Bryan as driver into the box. - Chicago, Illinois, Staats-Zeitung (Dem.)

His nomination will leave no resentments. No man in the country will give him heartier support than Richard P. Bland. For great as is the triumph of Mr. Bryan, it is no greater than that of Mr. Bland, who sees in both platform and candidate his own victory and his own exaltation.-St. Louis Post-Dispatch (Dem.)

The Democratic convention met to select the strongest candidate the party could present for the great battle in behalf of the There is no questioning the judgment of the convention. To the credit of Mr. Bryan let it be said that he had no managers grooming him for the nomination.-Kansas City Times (Dem.) .

The Democratic candidate is a hero tariff reform as well as a hero of the 16to-1 currency idea. Having demanded for Mr. Bland the highest honor the national party can bestow the Democrats of Missouri will now of course tender to their silver champion the highest honor which It should be understood that the selection of Bryan is one of the most dangerous nominations that could have been made.

He has all of Bland's or Tillman's dema-gogy with far more ability and smoothness than both of them put together. Of any evidence of administrative capacity or original creation of legislative measures his | (Dem.) record is blank.-Pittsburg Dispatch (Ind.) The government is too lofty in design and promise, too vast in its ramifications and too thoroughly interwoven with the hopes and aspirations of these 70,000,000 of people to have its administration interrupted by the callow experience and utoplan statesmanship of a youth whose fame rests upon his oratorical exploitations of the cardinal features of Populism-Galveston News (Dem.) Bryan's nomination was the wisest choice the Chicago convention could have made from the standpoint of the free-silver juterest. He has always been in sympathy with the economic and social views held by the Populists. His indorsement by the Populist convention will mean a solid and enthusiastic union of all the silver forces-a situation which the Republican golderat party may well "view with alarm."-Minneapolis

Times (Dem.) Though selected without deliberate regard for the fitness of things, the nominee will find himself very much at home upon the platform. Bland was the original freecoinage mover and the really logical candidate. The free-silver men cannot complain should gold men in the Democratic party decline to support their platform and candidates. They have done all they could for the open air patriotic song service, to to make it impossible for such men to do so .- Detroit Free Press (Dem.)

Young, able, eloquent, aggressive, strong in his convictions and fearless in expressing them, William Jennings Bryan is a typical representative of the great Central West, where they grow men and ideas as well as corn and wheat. The youngest man ever nominated for the presidency, he has already given conclusive evidence of powers that inspire confidence in his filling the -Cleveland Plaindealer (Dem.)

As a whole the money plank of the Chicago platform is an assemblage of the hisheresies that have been reiterated end-Ocala to Denver, and that have been made the text of furious diatribes by vengeful rebels and screeching Populists. It is that plus an anarchistic assault upon the sacred right of private contract.-Chicago Times

No member is bound by a convention whose irregularities and defiance of rule and precedent were next after its avowal of sectionalism and the gospel of hate, its own particular pride. To-day every man whose Democracy is graven on his heart and stored among the ideals dearer to him than all save honor, is absolved from party ties .- St. Paul Globe (Dem.) In another editorial the Globe demands the holding of another Democratic convention for the nomination of a ticket.

Under the heading, "Bryan and the --the St. Louis Westliche Post (German Reoublican) says: "The unexpected has happened-the Chicago convention of fools has placed on its crazy platform not the logical andidate for the presidency, Master Bland, but his pupil, young Bryan, of Nebraska. Leaving Altgeld and Tillman aside (the first as a foreigner, the latter for other weighty reasons, was not available) t appears to us that a weaker nomination could hardly have been made. We dissent from many things done in the convention-its silver declaration is repugnant to our judgment of what should be the position of the party, but in this case, as has happened before, the candidate is better than the platform. His views on all subjects but one commend him to the support of all Democrats, and on that one we would rather take the chances with Bryan than accept the only alternative-the fickle and inconsistent McKinley, who is wrong on all things.-Pittsburg Post (Dem.)

To make free and false coinage the gift of gab is the first requirement. Nobody will dispute that in this respect Bryan stands at the bead of his school. To rail at Wall street will open the sluices of his eloquence. While from New York, as the natural reservoir, money flows over the country, he can fluently pervert the truth and thunder against "gold bugs." We admonish advocates of national integrity to be on guard and have an abiding faith that the people cannot be tasked into knavery or foonshness.-Cincinnati Volksblatt (Rep.) No man is better fitted to advocate and defend the faith of his party. He largely ante-dated the convention in the promulgation of the doctrines which the platform announces. Had the delegates not adopted a single resolution they would have written as his State bonors him. He is the sign in the political sky that tells that it is cinnati Enquirer (Dem.) It is just to say that if there be reason for grave objection to the platform adopted by the Chicago convention there can be none urged against the personal character of the presidential nominee. Since it was the desire of the great majority of the convention to pronounce for the free coinage for him a friendly feeling. It seems easy to conclude that his defeat in November will not be easily compassed.—New York

Journal (Dem.) The nomination of William Jennings Bryan as the Democratic nominee on a opulist platform, for President of the United States means that there is a scattered, not numerous, but resolute, party in this country in favor of, among other things: Extinction of the right of private contract. Legislation to alter the Supreme Court of the United States as to make it populistic. Voiuntary bankruptcy of the national government. Involuntary bankruptcy of all business men of the United

We doubt whether the Chicago convention could have chosen any man so well equipped to unite and inspire the cheap-money fanatic as Mr. Bryan. He will be aggressive, and unless the Republicans shall rise to a just appreciation of the national peril by greeting aggressive repudiation by equally aggressive resistance it is more than posisble that the contest may be doubtful. The peril is a grave one, but united patriotic citizens in the heroic effort the occasion demands can easily win an overwhelming triumph over the combined foes of national honor .- Philadelphia Times (Dem.)

The New York Staatz-Zeitung, in explaining its reasons for supporting Mckinley, says, among other things: "Circumstances have made McKinley the man around whom all must rally who desire to defeat determinedly the candidate for the pseudo Democracy, William J. Bryan, who stands for flat money under the guise of bimetalabilities, for communism and lawlessness, McKinley and the party he represents have until now induced Democratic and inde-pendent voters to look for means by which they could avoid the necessity of supporting the Republican ticket. This has been shown to be hopeless and there is no other way but to offer our support to our old opponents.'

The Baltimore Sun and the Baltimore Evening News, both heretofore strongly Democratic, will not support Bryan in the coming campaign. The Sun says: "The only question that now presents itself to the sound-money men is 'How to beat Bryan?' He is the best man the free-coinage people could have nominated. A brilliant speaker and an effective campaigner, he fits the plat-form and the platform fits him. The chances of success, however, are in favor of McKinley and sound money. We regard the evils of protection as of less importance than the evils of free silver coinage." The News, in an editorial, says: "There is no duty half so urgent to-day as the duty of seeing that the Chicago idea of Democracy is buried as deep as possible next November.'

In an editorial which concludes with an (Dem.) strongly disapproves of the Chicago | appeal for the nomination of another Demplatform, and will announce that it will ocratic ticket, the Louisville Courier-Jour- Washington63 not support the candidates nominated on | nal says: "The league of free-silver men | Philadelphia69 capture the organization of the Democratic | St. Louis69 party have accomplished their purpose. THE LONDON PRESS.

Comments of the Times, Graphic, Standard and News.

LONDON, July 10 .- The daily Graphic, in an editorial, describes the decision of the Chicago convention as "madness not devoid of certain pernicious congruity, as it will make the presidential election a conflict of crazes between the two evils of protection on the one hand and socialism and free silver on the other. The outlook for the United States is black, indeed." The Daily Graphic thinks that the Democratic prospects are better than some people think; "for," it argues, "another term of McKinleyism will give a great impulse to the Democratic platform."

The Times editorial says: "The selection of Mr. Bryan was not unwise because he has shown himself the most powerful advocate of the policy to which the convenmust we think of a party whose best man | runs. Shiebeck hit to short and was out gives utterances to such stuff as his speech and which listens to it with unanimous approval. He knows his hearers and suits himself to their intellectual capacity. The editorial in the Standard (Conservative) says: "The Democrats have committed suicide, for so far as the presidential contest is cencerned the party has immanipulation did Mr. Hanna save the Republican party from disruption on the dential election this corroding heresy may minds that a free-silver President will be inevitable." The Standard, after congratulating President Cleveland upon his friends' firm stand for honest money, proceeds to paint the gloomy prospect of McKinleyism for English manufacturers. The Daily News (Liberal) says, editorial-"Mr. Bryan resembles his famous ccuntryman who said of eternal punishment, 'Our people will never stand it.'

Mr. Bryan's creed may appear nonsense to an educated reader, but he is a perfectly logical bimetallist. It is almost a pity hat he has not a better chance. But Mr. McKinley is sound on money and is almost sure to win."

Hit Umpire Snyder with a Bat After Being Struck in the Jaw. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 10 .- Manager Manning tried an experiment to-day which resulted very disastrously for the Blues, as it gave the champions the concluding game of the series. "Hunky" Hines has not been ning sent him to the bench and put Menefee in right field. In the second inning Menefee lost two easy fly balls from Shannon and Motz, on account of the sun being in his eyes, and the Hoosiers then batted in five runs, Shiebeck having previously made a home run hit with nobody on bases. In the fourth inning another hit of the same kind went to right field and gave the Hoosiers another run. The exciting feature of the game was a largesized scrap between third baseman Shiebeck, of the champions, and Umpire Snyder. Shiebeck and Snyder got into an altercation over a decision at the plate wherein the umpire called a Cowboy safe Shiebeck attempted to strike the umpire, but was restrained by Klusman, of the Blues. Shiebeck broke away and tried again to hit Snyder, when the umpire landed a heavy blow with his left, sending Shiebeck reeling away. Shiebeck grabbed a bat and threw at the umpire, but his chest protector prevented him from being hurt by the blow. Players of both teams then rushed in and separated the combatants. Shiebeck was fined $50 and ordered off the grounds. He was escorted away by a policeman to see that no harm came to him.

AT MILWAUKEE TO-DAY. Indianapolis to Play the Brewers-The Games at the Grand.

The "fans" at the Grand Opera House yesterday were greatly interested in the fight between Schlebeck and Snyder and the umpire was roundly hissed. The hitting which caused the run-getting in the third inning was roundly cheered. The "little champions" were decidedly in the graces of the spectators. To-day Indianapolis meets the Brewers at Milwaukee. The telegraph service has already been arranged for and the same clever reports at the Grand may be looked for as during the Kansas City series Each day sees an increased interest in the automatons and the play by electricity. Play is called at 3:30 o'clock to-day.

SCREAM My baby broke out with a rash. He would scratch and scream. It would take two to hold him, and one to put medicine on him. We had to hold him sometimes an hour before we could get him quiet d down. All said that they never saw such a face or body on any haby as on him. I had to tie his hands tight in a cloth, night and day, for five months. My sister had used & TI-CUitA, and I began to use it. After only one opplication, he bry down and aleptas be had not for a month, poor little fellow. He has not a scar on him now, and is as fair and his flesh is as soft as any baby While he had this disease I had to cut the sleeves out of his ciothes, and put gauze underwear on him to keep him cool. I had to keep pieces of soft cioth around his neck, it was so wet with moisture from the sores, and I had to change the clothe sometimes ten or twelve times warm buths with Curreuta Soar, and gentle applications of a current to the great skin cure.
